"SUPERSTORM SANDY – NO 'WALK IN THE PARK' FOR WILLOWWOOD" says John Morse, Manager of Horticulture for the Morris County Park Commission. Here is his report:

Superstorm Sandy blew through on the night of October 29 and changed the face of the Willowwood Arboretum for years to come. Thankfully, none of our buildings were damaged and our gardens, shrubs, and flowering tree collections escaped relatively unscathed. But several of our shade trees were badly damaged and many trees in our woodlands toppled over. Overall, more than sixty trees were marked for priority removal because they affected the gardens and collections, blocked trails, or had flattened our perimeter deer fence, yet hundreds more still litter the woodlands and hillsides.

Like many of our neighbors, after power was finally restored and immediate safety issues addressed, the grim reality of clean-up began. A contractor removed the largest trees and our staff tackled the rest collecting storm debris from throughout, cutting up fallen limbs and small trees, removing broken branches, and chipping brush. In November and December we devoted nearly thirty person-days to storm clean-up alone and this will continue for many months.

Nearly 300' of repair is needed on the perimeter deer fence - so critical for preventing deer from damaging plants within the arboretum. After the storm, staff erected temporary barricades in eight locations where the fence had been badly damaged.

And one not-so-obvious effect of Sandy has been that storm clean-up has distracted us from our normal end-of-season arboretum chores. Fortunately, the open winter weather thus far has allowed us to catch-up on some needed winter maintenance projects.

Assessing the damage to Willowwood immediately following the storm was extremely discouraging. Developing an arboretum is a long term venture, the result of many talented and devoted individuals performing seemingly small tasks each day that, over the years, collectively make Willowwood what it is today. To suffer such a monumental step backward, all at one time, was a true challenge. Thankfully though, I am a gardener, which means I'm an optimist – and as the fallen trees are hauled away I can already see opportunities for new plantings. With time, a new generation of trees and shrubs will emerge at Willowwood and the ravages of Sandy will be only a memory. Now, we will begin anew...

Base Camp and Somerset Hills YMCA Volunteers join MCPC Gardenworks and Willowwood Staff to clean up Sandy's Debris:

Kate Gutierrez, Horticulture Volunteer Specialist, offered “A big thank you and a group hug for our eleven Outdoor Friends from BaseCamp & the Somerset Hills YMCA lead by Karen Witt and Tonya Biondi.” Their ‘giving back’ motto and enthusiasm was contagious as Willowwood’s regular ‘Gardenworks’ volunteers, staff and three trusty mule trucks worked hard in difficult terrain, mud and fallen debris, to clear trails of Sandy’s massive debris in the Pine and Cedar Hillsides. After several hours on January 9th, there were 20 impressive piles of broken tree limbs stacked along the exit road for shredding and seventeen very tired but well satisfied workers for a ‘job very well done’.

The following are some comments from Karen Witt of Base Camp as to why the SH YMCA and Base Camp volunteers gave their time and considerable energy to work on this enormous project:

Kate Witt noted that she and her husband moved to Basking Ridge over 20+ years ago from Wyoming and were avid cyclists who “found” Willowwood and have returned many times to lead group hikes in her job as an Outdoor Adventure Program Guide for Base Camp and the Somerset Hills YMCA. “Our Outdoor Programs are geared to getting people outside and active. They are also about giving back to the earth we so enjoy! We like to educate, exercise, and enrich our lives through time spent outdoors. We volunteered at Willowwood last year and were glad to return again this year” said Karen.

“We always enjoy being outside especially in such a beautiful location as Willowwood! A gem in our state! It is a real pleasure to get a group of willing people together to volunteer for an outdoor clean up project. It is truly amazing what you can do in a short period of time with willing people: "many hands make light work". Our group is a mixture of hikers, bikers, kayakers - all outdoor enthusiasts. Also, gardeners, herbalists, environmentalists, teachers, doctors, dentists, lawyers, nurses, hygienists, chemists, stay at home moms or dads, students.... a real mixture! The main thing we all have in common is our respect and interest in the great outdoors. We all enjoy the camaraderie that naturally happens after working a few hours together. When we return to hike on the trails or property we have cleaned up, we all feel a sense of pride and accomplishment for the work completed..”

John Morse, Manager of Horticulture, at the MCPC, was delighted at all that was accomplished. For more information as to how you can help—call Kate Gutierrez 973.326.7629 to discuss corporate, group or personal Volunteer Opportunities or the “Gardenworks” program.

Help with Sandy's aftermath & repairs...

Willowwood's next urgent project is to repair the perimeter deer fence - absolutely critical for preventing deer from damaging plants in the arboretum. Following Sandy, uprooted trees flattened nearly 300' of fence and while staff erected temporary barricades in eight locations where the damage was most severe, we know a fence contractor will be needed to install permanent repairs in these locations. Please make a contribution toward this important repair so that we can continue to keep deer out of the arboretum and protect our rare plants. Please call 908-234-1815 or email wwfoundation@willowwoodfoundation.com if you need more information. Thank you for your support.
